Hello from A&K Down Under,

Like many of you, we had big travel plans for 2020.

Many Australians were hoping to do some more local travel for a start, swept up in the groundswell of general goodwill towards those destinations affected by the December/January bushfires.

Not that we need excuses to explore closer to home, Australia and New Zealand offer some of the very best luxury travel experiences anywhere on Earth.

Understandably, we all had to put a pin in those plans for a few months. But down here in the Trans-Tasman bubble, the signs are very encouraging. Australia and New Zealand have navigated the COVID-19 pandemic in a way that means travel for Australians and New Zealanders may be coming sooner than we thought. Our domestic travel restrictions are steadily easing, and we are now counting the days until the next adventure, first stop somewhere in our own backyard.

And of course, like people everywhere, we're all looking forward to a time when it's safe to welcome international visitors back to our shores. We miss you guys.

In the meantime, we hope you enjoy some past famill highlights from our very own Product Executive, Rebecca Lewinsky. Bec has shared treasured stories from her stay at Longitude 131, Ayers Rock, The Louise, Barossa Valley and Matakauri Lodge in Queenstown. In addition, we also want to share a little video below that, when the time is right, might make you a little travel-hungry and eager to explore the lands down under.

Kind regards,

Kathie Sikkes
